Veterinarians may only certify compromised animals as being fit for transport where it is in the best interest of the welfare of the animal. My advice is that the above stock are fit for transport as described above provided the following conditions are met:

(a) They are transported within [] hours / days (b) They are transported directly to the destination, and transport is not more than [] hours duration. (c) That there is no worsening of the condition prior to transport (d) The animal is handled with appropriate care (e) The transporter is aware of the animal's condition	(f) The animal is penned in truck at reduced density: <input type="checkbox"/> 90% <input type="checkbox"/> 50% <input type="checkbox"/> with 1-2 others <input type="checkbox"/> Other: (g) The receiver is aware of the animal's condition (h) Extreme environmental conditions are not predicted (i) Plans for emergency humane destruction are in place if necessary
